

Tourism Generated $307.8 million in Revenue for Newport News in 2017

All regions in the Commonwealth saw an increase in tourism revenue, with the state reaching $25 billion

Newport News, VA, Sept. 7, 2018 – According to the U.S. Travel Association, tourism was once again an important contributor to the economy of Virginia – and to the City of Newport News – last year.

In Newport News, revenue from tourism in 2017 reached $307,845,245 in the city, a 4.1 percent increase over the prior year. It also supported 3,047 jobs here, a 1.1 percent increase. As an economic engine, tourism in Newport News produced $10,495,782 in local taxes (a 2.4 percent increase) and $13,066,234 in state taxes (a 2.9 percent increase) over 2016 figures.

In the Commonwealth of Virginia, tourism generated $25 billion in travel spending, supported 232,000 jobs, and it provided $1.73 billion in state and local taxes. Figures were based on spending by travelers from within the United States on trips taken 50 miles or more away from home.

The Virginia Tourism Corporation attributes the increase in revenue to tourism development, such as new hotels and restaurants and the growth of craft breweries, wineries, distilleries, and cideries throughout the state.

The travel industry is the fifth largest private employer in Virginia, accounting for 7 percent of employment. Among the 50 states in the union and Washington, D.C., the Commonwealth of Virginia ranks 8th in domestic traveler spending.

Of Virginia's 133 counties and independent cities, 44 received more than $100 million in domestic travel expenditures in 2017. Also, 43 counties and independent cities have 1,000 or more jobs that were directly supported by domestic travelers during 2017.
